Some wonder how these spicy meals benefit our lives . . .

Well, these hot and spicy meals may not stimulate the one who kisses you good night, but they may be tickling your fat stores. Some spices, such as mustard and chili, have been found to spike caloric burning. For example, researchers at the division of kinesiology at Laval University in Quebec, Canada, found that the addition of red pepper to a meal significantly increased digestion related to fat burning, particularly with meals high in fat.
